 Pack - Coyote

Details

If you're looking to take a mammoth amount of cargo and water with you on your next outdoor mission, then look no further than the Camelbak Rubicon.

The Rubicon has a cleverly positioned reservoir that sits on your lower back - that way the water weight is more evenly distributed around the hips, which frees up your arms and upper torso. And the Rubicon also contains the largest amount of storage in the entire Camelbak line. Internally it's got nylon panels that are great for attaching gear, so the inside is fully customisable to your personal needs.

The storage is cleverly spaced out with front organiser pockets for easy access, and internal mesh pockets for storage of more valuable items. For added comfort, the pack is padded to the contours of the back and features an adjustable waist belt for easy positioning.

Internal MOLLE panel to attach essential gear/pouches
 Padded side pockets to protect important items
 Back reservoir access to avoid disrupting cargo
 Internal divider panel to separate main compartment to separate gear
 3L water reservoir
